Overview WHY

I have been researching web applications for recipes, and I did not find web applications like "Satl&Pepper". The idea is to create an app where users can storage, track, and find the recipes they make. The user could insert the name the recipe, ingredients, and process. As a result, they do not have to check recipes' books, digital documents or write down on a piece of paper.

1. Create a web application where people who love cook can storage their staff and have an access to any computer.

2. Paprika.com will be the most important web applications, for users who love cook.
